

Managing Ill and Injured Workers

2007

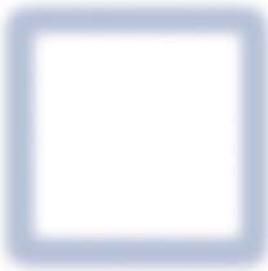

One Day Workshop

Most workplaces need to accommodate ill and injured workers. This program provides an overview of the key areas of legal risk and explores strategies for addressing these to maximise workplace efficiency.

Learning Outcomes

At the end of this program participants will:

- understand the impact of Work Choices on injured worker claims
- be aware of legal risks when managing ill and injured workers at various stages of their employment
- understand how to determine the inherent requirements of a position
- understand a process for assessing an employee's fitness for work
- be aware of issues relating to accessing and using medical reports
- be aware of the interaction between privacy, OHS, workers compensation, discrimination and employment laws
- be able to identify steps to take to minimise risk when terminating the employment of injured workers.
